

London hotels – find them on the web

Whether you are thinking of booking a leisure break in London or needing to stay in the city on business, you'll want to get the best deal on accommodation that you can. Happily, London has accommodation to suit just about every budget and taste, and most deals can be found using the internet. Official sites approved by the city, and leading independent sites are probably the best place to start.

On most of the accommodation sites you'll find a huge selection of hotels. The cheapest London accommodation starts with hostels and bed and breakfasts, where most bathroom facilities are shared. In exchange for limited facilities you get a reasonably priced night's accommodation in one of the world's most exciting cities. If you intend spending most of your time sightseeing or lapping up the almost limitless entertainment on offer in the nation's capital, then why waste money on booking a room you'll hardly occupy?

Modest accommodation is available in budget London hotels. Normally rated from one to two stars, these premises can be independent hotels or cheaper chain hotels such as Travelodge or Premier Travel Inns. Many of these establishments will not offer bar or restaurant facilities, but this style of accommodation may overlap into the mid-range hotels rated at three to four stars; more expensive than budget hotels but with superior accommodation and facilities.

When it comes to the upper end of the hotel market, London has more than its fair share. There is a huge array of five star hotels in London for the more affluent visitor. Many of the upper end hotels are also located in the vicinity of the top London attractions, found on Mayfair and Park Lane, close to such iconic landmarks as the Houses of Parliament, Buckingham Palace and, London's newest top attraction, the London Eye.

Many exclusive hotels in London also feature exclusive restaurants run by top class chefs, such as Claridge's which features cuisine from top TV and Michelin-starred chef Gordon Ramsey.

Check the websites of luxury London hotels regularly and occasionally you may find a bargain rate that will offer you superb accommodation at modest prices, but you are more likely to find a discounted rate on a dedicated travel or official city accommodation website.

Whether you want budget accommodation, five star luxury or something in between, you're sure to find it in London, with the best rates easily found online.
