These tools when applied would dramatically increase your poker profits by pursuing your opponent's play.

Let us explore the most commonly used tools that is consider as the Poker room detectives.

1. Online Poker Assistants that are available in the market is specially designed software, which has been developed to assist players while they are playing. There some software that are termed as "bots" that make all of the decisions for a player. Though it sounds good but these are not very strong and safe. If discovered using one of these programs a player can be banned from playing poker and also loses the hard earned money in their online poker room account. Other types of software are programs that overlay tables with statistics summarizing hand odds as well as the playing style of other players listing how often a certain player raises, calls or folds in real time.
2. Hand history databases are offered by most of the online poker rooms to the players trying their hands on it. Players can download the histories of the hands that they have participated in which are available in a text format. It is easy for a player to scan and analyze a single hand, but it is difficult and tiresome for multiple hands. . The most popular poker tools of this type include "Poker Tracker" and "Poker Office" that offers features like win rate calculations, opponent analysis, hand replay, analysis by position and much more.
3. With the explosion in popularity of online poker, a number of web sites that provide free online poker tools to their visitors started coming up. While there are some tools available are odds calculators which analyze the probabilities for games such as Texas Hold'em, Omaha and Seven Card Stud poker, and tournament equity calculators, there are also tools that may not directly assist a player while they are playing but are great at improving a player's knowledge which they can later apply at the table.
4. Computer Playing Programs is another tool that allow players to practice and improve their play without having any money at risk. Some of these programs offer advice and the ability to setup and analyze certain situations.

Therefore it can be concluded that with the help of these revolutionary poker tool poker players can not only keep notes on the games they play, but also see player notes from thousands of other players all organized and presented neatly and updating in real time.
