

Removals tips

Nearly all of us have to move house at one time or another and to do so we need to employ a removal company or hire a van man or truck and do it ourselves. Moving house is very stressful. Get it done as quickly as you can.

The following advices will help you to do it.

- 1) Spend some time phoning around: There is an element of luck in finding a van going your way.
- 2) Be as flexible as possible with your date - maybe you can organize someone at your destination to receive your property.
- 3) Try to find your own partner who is also going your way, and approach a removal company with a joint proposition.
Apply common sense to make sure the job is easy to understand and execute for the remover. To get the best price it is vital to convince a remover that your assessment can be trusted.
- 4) Stop and consider the quantity of your removal - because removals tend to be arranged before you have packed, peoples own estimates are often hazy, usually under assessed, and sometimes the actual job bears little relation to that described.
- 5) Package and box as much as possible, for speedy loading, protection, easy troll eying, and secure, tidy stacking on the van.
- 6) Consider any likely impediments to access or delivery (like locked barriers on campus)
- 7) Offer all the assurances needed about having your things easily accessible and that you will be ready to go before the van arrives.

On Removal Day please get your items in advance as close to the exit as possible without blocking your way through, please try to keep the items in the order they will need to be loaded into the van, this is:

1. Awkward Items (Mirrors, Frames, ironing boards, flat packed items, standing lamps, chest of drawers)
2. Closed boxes & Suitcases (boxed sized objects).
3. Bags & hold-alls.

If you pack your goods careful it helps keep them safe through the journey and also makes it easier to find things when you arrive at your destination. When hire man van and he can also help you pack, or if you prefer to get everything ready yourself it's better to follow the guidelines below.

- Pack items together for each room and label your boxes clearly.
- As you pack, store boxes in the hallway or in rooms near the front door, so that they are close to the van.
- Start by packing the items you use least often and leave the items you use the most until last.
- Ensure that any boxes of things you will need on the day you arrive stand out from other boxes.

After successful moving you will understand why removals companies offer consumers low cost van man with a range of six different sizes of vehicles to suit the requirements of most private customers. Research has shown that UK customers require short term van man London rental for activities like moving house, collecting furniture, transporting household items, helping students in and out of university accommodation and completing DIY projects.
