

How much does a dedicated server cost?

Most people who are toying over the idea of web hosting are sure to think over a dedicated server. Although it is true that the dedicated server is quite expensive, you need to think over all the benefits that it can give you before taking a decision.

It is true that most people use a shared web hosting server. It is a great option and a shared server is really very reliable and relatively free from enormous problems. However, most people go for the shared servers because they are a cheaper bet. If you have the financial backing that will enable you to get hold of a dedicated server, then why not cherish all the advantages that it has?

When you see that your website is utilizing a lot of your host's resources, and your site is taking a lot of time to load, thanks to the enormous amount of traffic, it is time to get a dedicated server. Generally, the increased amount of traffic to your website is an indicator that you should let go of the shared server and go for a dedicated one.

Once you have decided that the amount of resources that your site requires and the amount of traffic that it gets calls for a dedicated server, the next thing to ponder upon is the cost. The cheapest dedicated servers are the unmanaged servers, coming for about $99 per month. However, this is the basic server and you might need much more that the unmanaged server offers.

When thinking about the amount for the server, you need to consider the amount of money you earn from your website. If it is a great site that gets you a lot of profits, then it might be worth spending a considerable amount for a dedicated server. Consider the following things:

- Does the profit from your site promise to make up the cost of the server?
- Is the new server a means by which your site will be able to make more money?
- In case of a crisis, will you be able to keep the site going?

In any case, if you have a very busy site, then the money that you pay to your host increases considerably. In such cases, going for a dedicated server can even help you save some money!
