

Indian Wedding: Another example of unity in diversity

Indeed, Indian wedding is another example of unity in diversity. Though various regions and religions in the country celebrate their nuptial-knot-tying ceremonies in different ways, traditional customs and norms play predominating roles everywhere. While Hindu 'shaadis' are solemnized in accordance with certain ethnic rituals, Muslim 'Nikahs' follow the Islamic laws mentioned in Quran. Sikh communities' 'Anand Karajs' have some distinct customs to perform, whilst, the Christians in India get into wedlock according to their own rituals. Communal variety is another feature of Indian wedding. Thus, marriage ceremonies in the North Indian community are a bit dissimilar from the weddings in South Indian or West Indian communities.

These days, Indian wedding isn't only confined into ritual performances; instead it has become a glorious affair. With the present craving for making wedding more wondrous, wedding planners and their services have become quite popular in the modern society of India. These services provide complete wedding solutions, which comprise of services like wedding venues, trousseaus, themes, accommodation, transportation, priest, catering, floral and light decoration, video and still photography, cultural programs, wedding cakes and so on. Truly, these wedding planning services are very much assistive for the smooth-sailing of the entire marriage event.

Wedding invitations hold a special significance in Indian wedding. It is better to say that with wedding invitations cards, the journey of wedlock sets off. Be it Hindu, Islamic, Christian or Interfaith weddings, wedding invitation cards are available in all forms. Besides numerous card shops, a number of online websites showcase an extensive range of wedding cards. Furthermore, the availability of traditional as well as contemporary wedding cards on all these websites leaves everyone with manifold options to choose from.

Wedding Decoration is equally significant in Indian wedding affair. Wedding decoration generally covers all the nitty-gritty including theme weddings, reception, flower arrangements, stage backdrops, 'vidhi mandap', gate decoration, food canopy, wedding car decoration, 'doli' decoration etc. Mainly, these services are included in wedding planning services, but one can also go for individual decorators, who are specialist mainly in wedding decoration.

And finally, it comes to wedding dresses. Though, traditional Indian wedding dresses varies from one community to the other, heavy-embroidered outfits like Lehengas, Sarees, Suites, Kurta Pyjamas, Sherwanis are a common ingredient of trousseaus. Of late, a huge craze for designer wears is noticed among young hunks. These wears have modified all traditional attires and given them a complete makeover.

Irrespective of all communities and religions, Indian wedding has got a distinct flavor. With myriad hues and vibrancy, the wedlock ceremonies in this country have become an integral part of the nation's culture. Though, the touch of globalization has given a new look to this event, its basic character remains unchanged.
