

Senior Home Health Care

Many 'baby boomers' find they are becoming the 'sandwich generation', families raising children and at the same time caring for aging parents. And, at some point, many come to realize they can no longer handle the responsibility of elder care alone. Few decisions are as difficult as when a family is making plans for the care of an elder family member who for reasons of safety and health care can no longer be totally independent. Deciding whether or not to relocate them against their wishes is painful. Issues of personal dignity and life style preferences conflict with the need of assurance about the welfare of the elder parent. As expected, these elders do not want to leave their routine and the comfort of familiar surroundings. Caring families can take assurance in the knowledge that when they choose affordable "Preferred Care at home" they have made the best decision. Preferred Care provides elder care in the home and negates the need to relocate seniors.

The compassionate care of a Preferred Care caregiver will be customize around your specific needs and time table. They are always willing to do things in the manner that you prefer. Caregivers provide personal services such as bathing, dressing, and feeding. You can count on them to assist with medication reminders and physical therapy. Assess your needs, and Preferred Care caregivers will perform light housekeeping, change linens and do the laundry. They are available to do the grocery shopping and assist with pet care. As well, caregivers will act as companions to the elder person; to play cards, aide with reading and correspondence and maintain client's calendar. You decide what you need. Preferred Care caregivers are also available to help with Alzheimer cognitive assistance.

This is home assisted living at its optimum. Elder health care professionals provide in-home, safe, and sensitive care for the people you love. Of interest too, is that "Preferred Care at home" offers senior-home-care franchises. If you have a desire to make a difference in the life of an elderly or ailing person or for someone who needs a little extra care at home, you can make a difference in these lives and achieve financial success at the same time. Preferred Care at home has embraced the golden rule, "Do unto others.." for the past 24 years, and this creed is embraced by all employers', caregivers and franchise owners.
