

Classification of Companies Requiring UID Labels

What is UID Label?

UID Label is a key criterion for making your items UID compliant. UID Labels are used for all Department of Defense Unique Identification requirements and serialization tracking programs (SNTs). When you apply for UID registry, it is extremely important that your items have proper UID Labels on them. Choosing the right UID Label can be very crucial to achieving UID compliance. The UID Labels, UID tags and UID nameplates must last long under difficult conditions and should not wear away.

You can choose from a wide range of materials such as stainless steel, aluminum, polyester, or laser marked adhesive backed tape. However, the UID labels or plates must meet the MIL STD 130 code standards. Typically, all companies requiring UID labels, UID nameplates, and Mil-Std 130M UID compliance can be classified into three broad categories such as:

Limited Resource Small-to-Medium Size Companies – These companies have a Mil Std 130 requirement but can't afford to purchase CO2 laser etching equipment or thermal transfer printers, UID label verification equipment and qualified staff to satisfy UID orders. Hence, they generally seek a reliable UID partner which can offer UID compliance labels, UID nameplates, verification reports and also a process to submit UID information to the WAWF and UID Registry. If this is you, then enquire to ID-integration asking about their small scale solutions. These solutions will get you UID compliant quickly and easily.

Full Resource Medium-to-Large Size Companies – These companies usually have all the available resource to fully implement Mil-Std 130M compliant label and tag, UID verification and WAWF and UID registering processes. However, they seek a UID partner that can help them in correctly choosing the appropriate UID equipment or process for their operation. If this is you, then enquire to ID-integration asking about their complete solutions. These solutions will get you UID compliant quickly and easily with a low cost/nameplate.

Selective Resource Medium-to-Large Size Companies – These companies have adequate resource to implement the essential equipment and processes for complete Mil-Std 130 UID compliance. However, they choose to partner with a vendor that can offer UID labels and UID nameplates including on-demand and verification reports in a timely fashion. ID-integration.com provides several complete solutions to UID needs. The best solution for a particular company is largely dependent on the number of UID labels needed.
