

Look Beautiful in a Picture Perfect Prom Dress

Locating the perfect prom dress may not be easy. Nowadays you will have to look through dresses of all styles and colors and from all types of designers. To make matters worse, all these dresses are spread out in many different stores.

You might miss out on a certain dress if you skip one store or, worse yet, you might pay a lot more money for the same dress at one store by not going to another. Besides, some stores may not carry any dresses that are true to you and your own unique style. Read on and you are sure to feel more confident about your hunt for the right prom dress.

First of all, you can never start looking too early. In fact, the earlier you start, the better off you'll be. Don't have a date? Who cares! You're likely to get one, and it is his job to match you. So it won't matter if you choose a dress before you choose a date. Don't worry about him liking it because, if you like it, you'll be confident and radiate beauty. If the dress really pleases you, he will adore it.

Research all the dresses. This is the most fun part of buying a prom dress; spend a day with your girlfriends and spare nothing. Did you just see the worst dress ever? Try it on! You and your friends will get a great laugh from it, and you might possibly even decide that, even though the color is horrendous, the back line is exactly what you want. Visit malls and local dress stores and, even if you think something will look terrible, try on everything you can. You're liable to discover that you like a style you didn't think you would, even if that particular dress isn't the right one for you.

Take some photos. Your friends can be quite handy by taking pictures of you in some of your favorite dresses. That way, you'll be able to review them later on. One of the biggest mistakes people make is not taking pictures because it is impossible to remember each dress after you've tried on a day's worth. Getting photos will prevent later uncertainty. Besides, your friends that didn't get to go with you will love to look thru the dresses that you tried on and will most likely put in their thoughts on what they like and don't like. Who knows? They may even find their own favorite in your pics!

A huge mistake would be buying the first dress that you liked. The options are there, so take advantage of them and look at everything! When you believe you have found the perfect dress, ask the store to hold it for you so you can return home and continue your search online. You'll be able to come back if you need to, but you can probably find the same dress online at a much better price since the stores are usually much more expensive.

Find the dress you want in the store and then buy it off of the Internet. Stores usually tack on a high mark-up, so the exact same dress will be online for much less. Based on the recommendations from your friends and pictures that you have stored in your camera phone, you can choose a dress that matches all the details. Don't be contented with a dress that is just okay; instead, aim for the perfect dress to match your personality. Online shopping has no limitations, so you can see what each and every designer has available, including all the color choices for each dress. Since your options are endless online, you'll find the perfect dress shape-color-style combo that will seem to be made just for you!

Put the dress on and see how it fits when it arrives. Confirm that the fit is proper. With just a little imagination, your bedroom becomes a personal changing room as you try on the dress. Sometimes, though not always, it will cost very little to alter some parts of the dress, particularly if a friend or family member can see to it. Don't send it back just because it is a little too long or needs a jewel replaced. These things are really easy fixes. If it is too big, too small, too revealing, or not revealing enough, you should just return it and try again. You'll know if it's not the right dress for you.

Remember not to limit yourself. When buying a dress online, you are not limited to just this year's fashions. If the styles for this year aren't your style, look at dresses from previous lines or even go vintage! For example, the styles from this year will differ from previous years, so if your body type is wrong for the current styles, you have the option of looking at older styles. This is one of those times of your life that doing what everyone else is doing, or wearing what everyone else is wearing, will not be in your best interests.

Do you look and feel beautiful in the dress? If you do, then buy it. And whatever you do, don't compromise what feels right. Any of the girls that just settle for this year's line of dresses could set themselves up for bad memories and, worst of all, they'll forever be stuck with the pictures showing it!
